9 Things New Faculty Need to Know about Title IX
Presented by Brandy Banks, Title IX Coordinator, Office of General Counsel
Learn about Wayne State’s policies prohibiting sexual misconduct and our institutional responsibilities under Title IX. Faculty will learn what to do if they become aware of an alleged action that warrants reporting; how to provide effective support to students should the need arise, including the provision of interim measures in coordination with the Title IX Office; and where to access additional information about support services, reporting options, and supplementary guidance.

AAUP-AFT 101: An Introduction to Your Union
Presented by the AAUP-AFT Union Representatives
Attendees will learn a brief history of the Union, and why a Faculty Union is important at Wayne State University. Participants will also learn about Collective Bargaining Agreement highlights, such as contract renewals, promotion; tenure; sabbaticals; and other pertinent information. Lastly, attendees will find out about valuable resources available with Union membership.

Archives are not just for Historians! Enhancing student engagement with primary-source teaching
Presented by Kristen Chinery, Archivist, University Libraries; Meghan Courtney, Outreach Archivist, University Libraries
This participatory workshop will model a classroom experience for your students. Join in and learn the benefits of hands-on, archives-based critical thinking lessons that can be applied to specific learning outcomes in your own classes. Together with the workshop Archivists, you will brainstorm the ways these methods can be used, and how to customize the experience to your teaching needs.

Benefits: What You Need to Know
Presented by Diane Dailey, Director, Benefits and Wellness
Description coming soon!

From Wayne State to the World: Opportunities for Faculty through the Office of International Programs (OIP)
Presented by Jaclyn Assarian, Associate Director, Office of International Programs; Fareed Shalhout, Associate Director of Student Programs, Office of International Programs
Interested to learn how you could teach or conduct research abroad as a WSU faculty member? Maybe you would like to take students overseas for a study abroad experience - or bring students from other countries to Detroit? For this and all things international, our Office of International Programs (OIP) is here to help! In this session, new faculty will learn what opportunities are available within OIP, like faculty-led study abroad programs and institutional partnerships. OIP staff will also discuss resources available for faculty travel, such as Fulbright Scholar Awards, and the process to develop new short term programs for incoming visitors.
NEW FACULTY ORIENTATION
Agenda         August 19 - 20, 2019

Let's Get Your Research Funded!
Presented by Sarah James, Research Support Liaison, Division of Research; Denise Figlewicz, Assistant Vice President, Division of Research
Learn about the Division of Research, who they are and what they do. New faculty will learn about the must-dos for research, who their associate research is, and who their grant and contract officer is.

Meet Your Subject Librarian
Presented by Monique Oldfield, Librarian, University Libraries; and University Librarians
Description coming soon!

NCFDD: Planning a Successful First Semester
Moderated by Annmarie Cano, Associate Provost, Faculty Development and Faculty Success
Description coming soon!

The Office for Teaching and Learning (OTL): Your resource for everything teaching!
Presented by Sara Kacin, Director, Office of Teaching and Learning; Tonya Whitehead, Associate Director, Office of Teaching and Learning; OTL Staff
Join the OTL staff to engage in a lively discussion about good teaching practices, including tips for making the first day of class engaging and successful. Participants will also learn about the vast assortment of resources and services that the OTL provides to all WSU instructors, from writing an effective and accessible syllabus to creating meaningful and transparent assignments and exams.

Student Success
Presented by Monica Brockmeyer, Senior Associate Provost, Office of the Provost
Learn and understand the characteristics of the WSU student population, why WSU students are the face of 21st century higher education in the United States, and gain some strategies to maximize their own first few months, as well as those of their students. You will also learn some ways that the transition into WSU is similar for both new students and new faculty.

Successful Mentorship of Graduate Students and Postdocs – The Graduate School is here to Help!
Presented by Sokol Todi, Associate Dean, Graduate School; Sharon Lean, Associate Dean, Graduate School
Participants will discuss key issues in successful graduate student and postdoc mentoring. Faculty will also identify and use resources at the Graduate School to support trainee mentorship and success. Attendees will have a chance to win Graduate School prizes for participating in the discussion.
NEW FACULTY ORIENTATION
Agenda August 19 - 20, 2019

What if the Minions were students in your classroom? How would you manage disruptive behavior, report student concerns and request support?
Presented by Nikolina Camaj, Associate Director and Student Conduct Officer, Dean of Students Office
Participants will examine and discuss how to address students of concern in the classroom as well as recognize how to report students of concern. Attendees will also be able to recognize the Student Code of Conduct policies/procedures, reporting forms, and resources on the Dean of Students Office Website.

What is My Role? Faculty Engagement in Building and Sustaining an Inclusive Campus Community
Presented by Marquita Chamblee, Associate Provost and Chief Diversity Officer, Office of the Provost
Faculty will explore the four levels of inclusion/engagement and their role in engaging diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) at each level. They will learn more about the history of DEI at WSU and understand how DEI fits in the institutional context. Finally, faculty will know what’s currently happening with DEI on campus and how they can get involved.